AAAAHHH. And a few pffft phews, Betty Pasquino, supported by Sandra Jean Winner, Pat Bengston, Regina Coppola, and Linda Boardman.

AN ALL-TIME BEST was provided by Sylvania, Industrial winner.

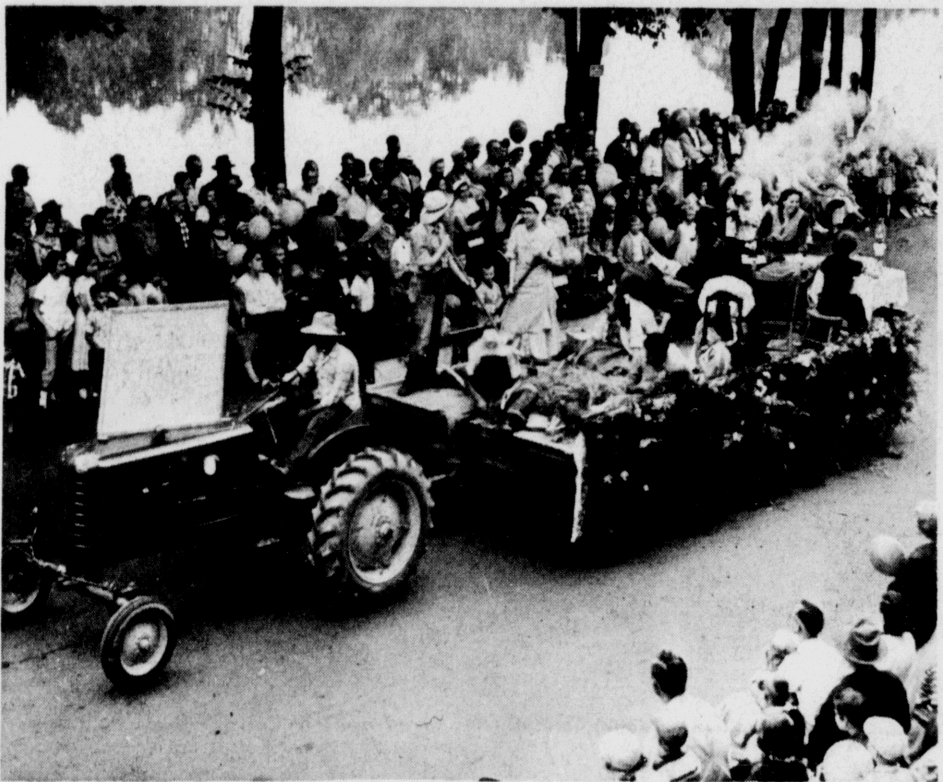

THE HONOR COLOR GUARD comes into view and the 1956 Junior Chamber of Commerce Fourth of July parade is on its way.

FIRST PLACE in the Service division of the float competition was taken by Russell Cub Pack 14.

COMMERCIAL WINNER. Loretta and Mary's Hand Painted Novelties.

WATSON GRANGE put this together for second place honors in the service division. Scandia 4-H was third, and honorable mention went to Northern Rangers, Beta Sigma Chi, and the Red Cross.

SECOND in the Commercial floats was the K and M Construction.

AUTOMATION: Nichols will wash your car without benefit of hands, as illustrated by their float. It earned an honorable mention.

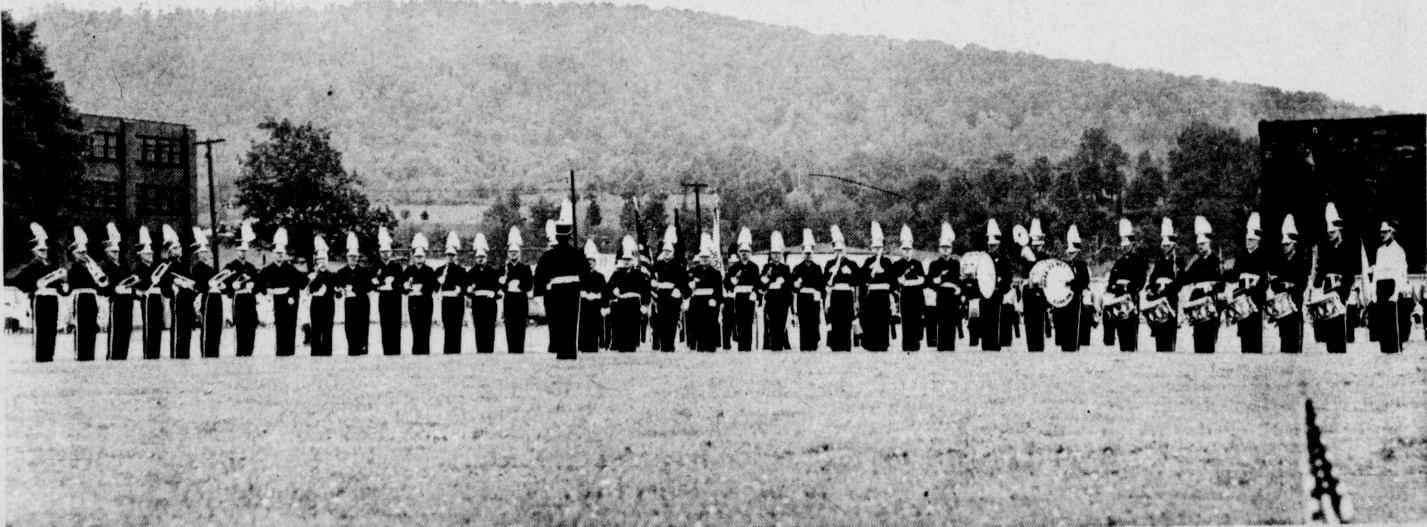

FIRST PLACE WINNERS in the Jaycee Fourth of July stand-still competition were the Flying Dutchmen, better known as the Dunkirk, N.Y., Hose Co. No. 1. These performers collected $150 prize money after accumulating 93.20 points in competition with the Cardinal Drum Corps, Lakewood, N.Y.; Cataract Cavaliers, Niagara Falls, N.Y.; and the Malta Marchers, Olean, N. Y., who finished in that order.

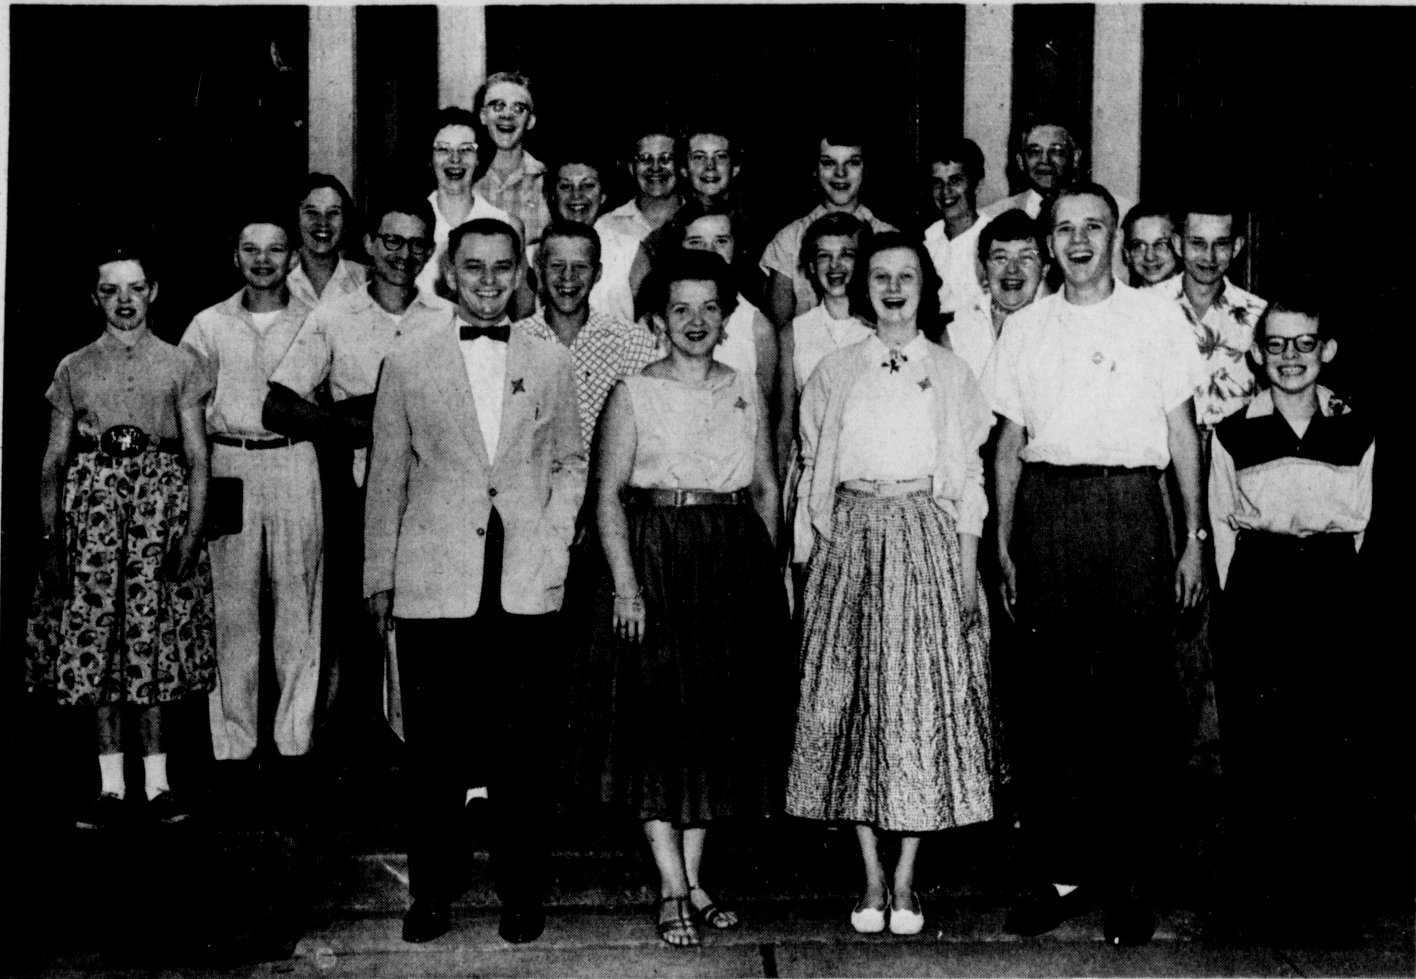

The Flying Dutchmen just recently won their second consecutive Class C New York State championship.

AND HIS NAME WAS BING

"BUY LOCALLY" the sign said over Emblem's float. It was second in the industrial class.

THE CARAVANERS. Four young people of the Augustana Lutheran League, the "caravaners", were at St. Paul's Lutheran church Sunday through Tuesday of this week conducting workshops and bible study courses. The "caravaners" are pictured here in the foreground with a group of St. Paul's young people. They are

FIRST-HALF RUNNER-UP in the Cadet league eastern division is the Printz Co. team. They were defeated, 9-3, by J. A. Johnson in a play-off at the airport field Monday night.

Armstrong, Jim Redding, John Barr, Doug Lind, Butch Dahl, Guy Albaugh, Jeff Rasmussen and Coach Bill Barr.

HERE IS THE SITE where the badly needed addition to the North Warren elementary school will be erected. It is the present playground area of the school located on State st.

The new structure, which will be 72 by 124 feet in size, plus an 18-foot corridor, will include four classrooms, a kitchen and multiple-purpose room. The latter will be available for cafeteria and recreational use.

The classrooms should accommodate about 40 pupils and will probably house the first and second grade classes.

This year the present building of eight classrooms was inadequate and sixth graders were forced to conduct classes in the Community House. In the coming term this group will have to travel to Starbrick.

CONEWANGO TOWNSHIP school district authority members (l. to r.) Samuel Bonavita, solicitor; Richard Loper, assistant treasurer; Roy August, treasurer; Stuart Nelson, secretary; T. G. Peterson, chairman; and Don Dalrymple, vice chairman, met Monday evening to review plans for the new addition to the North Warren elementary building. At this writing the authority was awaiting final state approval that will follow the report of the survey made by the state last week.

Working Patriots

The 56 stout-hearted (they faced hanging for insurrection against the British) patriots who signed the Declaration of Independence didn't just go home after their bold act and forget about it. They fought for the convictions they had subscribed to—and after the shooting was over, they worked for them—to make them work.

Two of the signers became Presidents—Jefferson and Adams—and one, Elbridge Gerry, became Vice President. Several became Governors, others state legislators.

Honorable Mention, Service Division

The POLITICS OF IT

THE STEEL STRIKE

A steel strike has so great an effect on the economics of our nation that those who do "think" pieces like this for a living must look behind every ingot for the politics of it. And there is much to find.

Steel is about as basic as you can get, and in its ranks are the men who own investments in a major share of our business world. Inasmuch as this is a "big business" administration in Washington, as plainly can be seen by looking at the cabinet and the record, many are inclined to believe that steel will not allow a strike to upset the "good times" which are credited to the Republicans.

However, there are some other aspects of the present economic situation that suggest a strike might be allowed to linger awhile, with several possible solutions that would not harm the times. They range from heavy inventories to political maneuvering.

A big share of our large industries today are plagued with inventories they can't move. Certainly they are not gaining on the supply as long as men continue to produce.

A nice way to eat into these inventories is to let labor go on strike. And even nicer is to have it happen at a supply point. It then cannot be blamed on the management, its salesmen, or bad business conditions. Labor at the source of supply gets the rib.

This also is shaping up at a time when the car industry is looking at 1957 models. Retooling and related lay-offs are about due. It will be nice to clean out some of the inventory before the new models start coming off the line. Extending that period with a shut-down caused by a steel strike may provide a perfect alibi.

Actually management and labor are not so far apart that an agreement is distant. But both are being a little more adamant than either expected. Steel, we believe, wants a raise. It makes money on wage increases. Labor always wants a raise. All of us can use more money, even if it gets us nothing. It is an additional cushion for the days to come when decreases may be necessary.

So close together are management and labor on the steel issue that we doubt if much negotiating would be necessary. Steel wants a five year contract. Labor wants it to be two. We believe steel would be lucky to settle it at three, and labor probably would jump at such a solution—if the pay were right.

We are suggesting that the politics of it also can be found here. Perhaps a word from President Eisenhower will be made to appear as the salving influence. This could be timely, with a resulting surge of production, millions going back to work just as the campaign gets fully under way, or is about to get under way.

One thing we are sure about. Those in the saddle will want prosperity late in the summer and early fall. And those in the saddle do represent big business. The strike will not go through that period.

We are certain that all will make the most of it. And there will be politics.

NO PRIZES were given majorettes. But from the sound of things we believe this young lady topped the mink-coated wolf whistle. We believe she lifted them high for Lakewood's unit.

W. C. FUELLHART

For his outstanding contribution to the welfare of his community, W. C. Fuellhart, Warren County Civil Defense Director, has received the Benjamin Rush award. The award, given annually by the Warren County Medical society for the Pennsylvania Medical society, was presented at the Jaycee Fourth of July program at Beaty field Wednesday night.

CIVIL DEFENSE DUCK. The new Civilian Defense Duck, a part of the organization's rescue program, was shown publicly for the first time in the Fourth of July parade Wednesday. The piece of equipment is 31 feet long, eight feet wide, and will adequately carry over 20 people.

Operators of the vehicle are Al Schafer and Harold (John) Fulmer. In front of the Duck are Everett Siefert and William Yeager, Jr., head of the CD rescue division.

"A woman has two reasons for buying something—because nobody has it, or because everybody has!"—H. G. Hutcheson.

"What a racket there would be if we made as much noise when things go right as we do when they go wrong."—Virgil Buchanan.

LITTERBUG IS A NAUGHTY WORD

The word "litterbug" is to be included in the new edition of Funk and Wagnalls dictionaries, and other dictionaries are following suit, according to the "Keep America Beautiful" organization. The coined, now official, word really "rates" the individual who engages in the dirty throw-away practice deplored by millions of Americans who naturally like their outdoors unspoiled.

In April of this year many communities in the State of Idaho campaigned during "Don't Be A Litterbug" week to encourage the public to eliminate the refuse nuisance along highways and elsewhere. A growing number of States are acting on the problem in one way or another.

The cover of the May issue of Pennsylvania Game News portrays two bear cubs scrambling to the safe side of a tree trunk to avoid being hit by bottles and cans thrown from a moving auto on a nearby highway. The story behind the cover points out that "Cans, bottles and assorted debris . . . turn an otherwise beautiful countryside into a nauseating eye-sore."

The growing practice of tossing out or dumping debris at any convenient spot caused disgusted persons and organizations to say "There ought to be a law". Well, there is. In Pennsylvania, individuals who insist on being untidy along highways, or who deposit junk or garbage on State Game Lands, are promised "pocketbook education". Unfortunately, it devolves on enforcement agencies to teach the inconsiderate that such unslovenly acts create an unwholesome, unnecessary mess not to be tolerated.

WILDLIFE MANAGEMENT IS A SCIENCE

The June issue of Pennsylvania Game News contains an outstanding article titled "Building A Wildlife Policy". The author, James W. Kimball, is Director of the Division of Game and Fish, the Minnesota Department of Conservation. He served for many years as a wildlife biologist and game manager in Minnesota and other states. Excerpts from the article follow:

"Wildlife management is a science and an art which . . . requires the services of a well organized team of specialists. I am not speaking only of research men but teams of practical managers with years of experience, and particularly of wardens who put management practices to work and tell the people why.

"In general, wildlife conservation should have two major goals. First, to maintain and increase populations to the desirable level, and second, to obtain the maximum harvest of each species without depleting the population. The first objective is easily understood and, in holding game populations high, by far the most important tool is habitat improvement. Given the proper environment in which to live each species will thrive and reproduce.

"To understand why fish and game can withstand a reasonable harvest each year without reducing the population is less obvious but just as logical, when you know the reasons. Recognizing those reasons marks the difference between a preservationist and a conservationist.

"Through science we give more people a higher standard of living on less land. We are now faced with the problem of providing hunting and fishing for a greatly increased number of sportsmen on a decreasing area of water and wildlife cover. We are entering an era when much more intensive wildlife management will be required to retain hunting and fishing. We will require the services of the best men available to do the job, just as we employ the best doctors when our

"The greatest obstacle to maintaining hunting and fishing is our lack of faith in wildlife management, and we had better have faith in practical, scientific management because if this won't save our favorite sport, nothing will. I consider it an important part of my job to provide sportsmen with facts . . . to get support for a wise management program.

"Wildlife research is still in its swaddling clothes. There is no reason to believe that obtaining and applying knowledge will not be productive in conservation as it has been in medicine and industry.

"There are some basic principles of wildlife management which must guide our thinking. Unless we understand these few principles we cannot know why wildlife populations are scarce or abundant, or how to manage them for greater abundance.

"First, we must understand CARRYING CAPACITY. A farmer may not know that term, but he uses his knowledge of carrying capacity every day. He knows that a certain pasture will support ten cows. So the carrying capacity of that range is ten cows. Of course, he can increase that carrying capacity with fertilizer or pasture renovation or reseeding, but until he does something to improve his pasture, or until he permits over-grazing or erosion to deplete it, the carrying capacity remains the same. The deer range and the duck marsh are the same. Each has its carrying capacity, which remains quite constant until something takes place to change it.

"The major problem of the wildlife manager is to learn what determines the carrying capacity and what he can do to change it. This thing, whatever it may be that determines the carrying capacity, is called the LIMITING FACTOR. The farmer knows the limiting factor in his pasture is food, in the form of grass. With wildlife the limiting factor is not always so easily determined. In the northern deer range it is frequently winter food, but it could be over-hunting, poaching, disease, or even predation. On the pheasant range the limiting factor is often very difficult to determine. It may be nesting cover, winter cover, escape cover, hunting pressure, predation, disease, or food.

"So the first job in managing any wildlife species is to determine this limiting factor. This is not easy because it can be different for each species and it may vary with each range. Once the limiting factor has been determined, actual wildlife management can start.

"I have emphasized the scientific approach but I am not talking just about research. Facts are useless until applied through management, and management includes everything from refuge patrol to rough fish removal. Of all the facets of management none is more important than the work done by the game wardens. Without an alert field service there can be no management and no progress."

FALL FORECAST

The high school boys will be out there sweating down the pounds on August 18. Coach Bell has lost all but one of his undefeated 1955 team and will be starting over again. Youngsville will hand a new coach, when they find him, a very fast team, missing only its Kulbacki, who will be out at Purdue with Mike Shanshala, of Warren.

There is a chance that Don Mohny, Warren's ace, will be in a prep school. Jack Shattuck and Carl Greco are welcome at Westminster if they choose to go.

That all-American high school game talk about Mohny involved only a feeler on the part of the Wigwamers, and is not definite.

Up Sheffield way Coach Ralph Santo will be rebuilding in both football and basketball. But he has many interested boys, considering the size of the community. As far as Sheffield is concerned the important fact is that Coach Santo is still with them, despite several offers.

MORE DANGER

That first overhead on Route 6, west of Warren, begins to look more threatening every day. Look road is being repaired and apparently widened. This means fast travel will be encouraged in the neighborhood but the overhead still will be unable to handle it.

ALL AROUND US

A newcomer to Warren recently told us that she was more impressed by the surrounding scenery than anything else. She started to name specific examples, then stopped and said, "Just look in any direction. It is beautiful."

And so it is. But it is not always easy to hold. So why not save the memory with a picture, preferably in color. Somehow, when enclosed in a frame, the beauty is emphasized and more readily appreciated.

NEW GOLF COURSE

Bradford industrialists have had a meeting for the purpose of studying the possibilities of providing that community with a public golf course. Nine holes would be built, but enough land would be purchased to allow for expansion. All very tentative, but also very serious.

MORE MONEY AVAILABLE

Area municipalities should alert themselves to the additional funds available for the construction and maintenance of roads, streets, and bridges. In previous years the state aid amounted to only $18,000,000. This year it is up to $30,000,000! Even more important, the community need not provide matching funds this year!

Warren county previously received $153,296. This year it has climbed to $237,264. That is an increase of over $80,000 for Warren county.

For communities that have filled out the required papers, the first payment was due on June 1. The second on December 1. Those who have not forwarded report forms to the highway district engineers are advised by the State Highway Department to do so immediately.

WHERE DO WE GET IT?

If you wonder where those millions and billions come from to do these highway jobs take a look at your gasoline price today. It went up Sunday. The federal tax hopped up a cent, making the federal take three cents a gallon. The state collects six. A total of nine, the highest ever. It started at one cent back in 1921.

FAULTY REASONING

In an effort to make the gasoline tax look excessive we saw one statement which said the original tax provided only about three million. The present tax raises $246 million.

He forgot to mention, however, that there are millions more cars on the road today. In fact, in Pennsylvania alone, a one cent tax today would be good for about $27 million. Almost nine times as much as in 1921.

NO PREVENTION MEANS?

We heard one commentator say that nothing could have been done to prevent the recent transport crash that cost over one hundred lives. To this layman there seems a simple solution. Why start two planes, traveling at great speed, and loaded with many people, off the runway three minutes apart when they are heading in the same direction? Any trouble on the part of either could soon close up the gap. And did! Are 128 lives worth ten or fifteen minutes?

It also is interesting to note that one plane was to fly a thousand feet over the clouds and the other was to fly at 21,000 feet. The clouds turned out to be at 20,000 feet. Doesn't that place them on the same level?

Why not place each on a definite level, far from the other?

NO QUESTION NOW

Anyone who hoped, believed, or preached that there was no lack of justice, no concentration camps, no loss of individual rights in Russia now knows better. The Russians have admitted the situation existed under Stalin. We now wait to see what they will do to remedy it under future leadership. Do they even have a basic system of freedoms to follow?

BETTING DOWN

Those who would legalize horse-racing in Pennsylvania to raise public funds may be interested in the decrease which is being suffered by leading tracks. Betting and attendance have been sliding downward since the boom which followed the war.

However, a new breath of hope has been found for the tracks. The ancient sport of steeplechase running is getting a big play. Steeplechase takes its name from the early days when the horsemen ran over hills, fields, and streams toward a landmark, usually a steeple. Strangely, perhaps, favorites in this type of racing come through twice as often as do those in flat racing.

SCENIC TOURS

Seven thousand pamphlets have been printed and distributed by the Warren Chamber of Commerce, in which two scenic tours in Warren county are described. One starts at the Hickory st. bridge and the motorist follows blue markings and arrows. It goes 41 miles through the Hearts Content area.

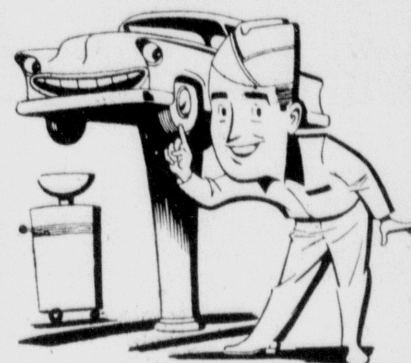

The other starts at the Glade bridge and follows yellow markings and arrows. It goes 49 miles through the Kinzua section.

The pamphlet also sells the area's natural attractions with descriptions of the forest, its inhabitants, and mention of places for camping and picnicking, plus the one to come, the Kinzua dam, which the flier says "will assure a constant flow of water for industrial use, freedom from flooding, and a recreational lake." Times sure have changed.

BIGS WIN AGAIN
Don't expect any legislation for the purpose of placing controls on television this year, or even next. Despite long hearings by congressional committees, with leaders in the field discussing practices that are supposed to give networks much control over independents, only one witness had enough courage to publicly attack the nets. In fact the witnesses backed the networks so strong that Senator John O. Pastore (D.R.I.) is quoted as saying, "It must be love."

There also has been nothing done about equal time for political candidates. There was hope that election year might inspire congress to assure rich and poor candidates equal air time. But it seems to be up to the networks or local stations, and the bill must be paid.

Of course the hearings did find the witnesses in agreement on one subject. They believe excise taxes should be removed from tv sets.

We are certain that the makers and distributors of all other products could testify in kind.

COLOR LEADER
Buffalo's WBEN not only leads the area in color tv hours, but is second in the east. It is topped only by WSAZ in Huntington, W. Va., which has ten hours of color every week. WBEN has five.

WRCA in New York has four and a half hours, WTVJ in Miami has four, WJAC in Johnstown has three, WBTB in Charlotte, N. C., has one. Two others have plans for starting color or handling network only.

DIAL WHIRLS
Going Big in England are two name performers, Ben Hogan in golf and Jack Benny in the entertainment field. Ben always is welcome back and recently earned new honors in the international tournament, which he won. Jack was seen by twenty million June 3, and so well did he go that he has been invited to return as soon as he is available.

Doctor Baxter Takes Five is heralded as an interesting newcomer on WBEN, Monday through Friday, at 7:25 p. m. He is doing a capsule commentary.

The Doctor Takes A Wife is the Startime theatre, at 11:15 p. m. on KDKA Friday. Ray Milland and Loretta Young are the couple.

Sneak Preview replaces Fireside Theatre on KDKA, Saturday at 4:40.

Bowlers Are Losing through CBS having a uhf station in Buffalo. Live national matches are televised over WBUF every Sunday night. Don Carter made it six victories in a row during June.

The All Star game can be seen by you over WGR at 12:45 July 10. Though the American league holds a 13 to 9 edge, the National has won 5 of the last 6. Casey Stengel and Walter Alston will be the pilots.

An Eminent Doctor is Charles Boyer in Four Star Playhouse, tonight at 9:30.

Chicago plays Detroit in the game of the week.

Lou Gehrig's Greatest Day is the You Were There feature.

A Bridey-Murphy type character is played by Theresa Wright on Ford Theatre this evening, in Lady in The Wind.

Paulette Goddard, Gypsy Rose Lee, and John Boles are seen in Babes in Bagdad, for the 11:30 WGR theatre, Friday.

Pantomime Quiz opens Friday at 10:30, with Mike Stokely as emcee. The panel consists of Rocky Graziano, Carol Haney, Robert Strauss, Dorothy Hart, and Hans Conreid.

WBEN-TV has announced the purchase of many outstanding motion pictures, including several Academy Award winners, and leading cartoons which will make their local TV debut on Channel Four's movie schedule starting in September.

The Warner Brothers' Cartoon line-up includes such hits as Popeye, Bugs Bunny, Daffy Duck, Porky Pig, Foghorn Leghorn and Yosemite Sam. These animated features will be highlighted for the youngsters on Ch. 4's "Children's Theater" viewed weekday afternoons at 5, Cartoon Corner Sunday mornings at 9:30, and "Cartoon Capers," Saturday mornings at 9:45.

SOME OF THE FILMS TO LOOK FOR are How Green Was My Valley, The House on 92nd Street, Les Miserables, Edge of Darkness, Green Pastures, Little Caesar, Petrified Forest, Treasure of Sierra Madre, The Farmer's Daughter, Notorious, Since You Went Away, Portrait of Jennie, The Paradine Case, Garden of Allah, A Bill of Divorcement, Intermezzo, The Spiral Staircase, Pardon My Sarong, Hellzapoppin, and Lifeboat.

VIC DAMONE SHOW, which is on CBS-TV Monday nights at 9:30 (when WBEN-TV carries The Man Called X), takes over the "December Bride" spot on Channel 4 Wednesday, July 11, at 7:30 P.M. The Damone program is 9 days delayed from the network.

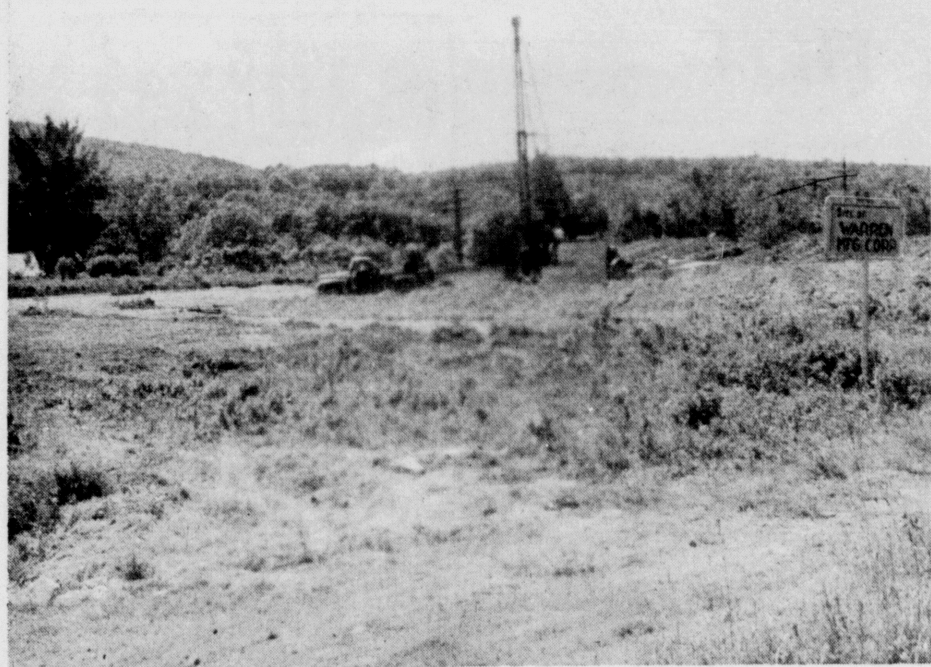

OUT-OF-TOWN JUDGES were secured to select the young lady who reigned over Fourth of July festivities here in Warren. They were (l. to r.) Ed Byrne, publisher of the Jamestown Sun; Connie Samuelson, of Jamestown radio station WJTN; Chuck Brown, of Boston; and George Sample, editor of the Corry Journal.

WARREN MANUFACTURING CORP. broke ground for its new building two weeks ago. The site is located on the vacant corner lot where the blinker light is situated at Starbrick.

The new company will manufacture manhole covers for milk tank trucks and other items directed mainly at the transportation field. Between seven and ten men will constitute the initial employment, with this figure expected to grow in the future.

LIGHTNING KILLED THESE COWS of Edward B. Day during the terrific storm Sunday night and early Monday morning. The bolt apparently struck the fence near which the animals were huddled under the trees for partial protection from the wind and rain. Mr. Day estimated his loss would total $4,000 and that two of the herd's best were among the casualties. His milking cows were reduced from 28 to 21 in a split second.

Darling and Co., of Cherry Creek, N. Y., was summoned and removed the carcasses late Monday afternoon. The proprietor advised Mr. Day that he had received calls of thirty-four cows that were killed in the area during the same storm.

Mr. Day's farm is located in Youngsville.

THIS COW APPEARED TO BE STANDING when visitors viewed the tragedy from the cemetery. Early observers, including the owner, stated that no cows were on four feet as was rumored throughout the community.

NEARLY DOUBLING the capacity of the Warren Motel, located just west of Warren, are the owners Fred and Eleanor Schultheis. Nine additional units are being added to make a total of 19.

The expansion program will give some relief to the existing hotel situation that was caused in Warren by the Carver Hotel fire.

Downtown Parking Discussed By Retailers

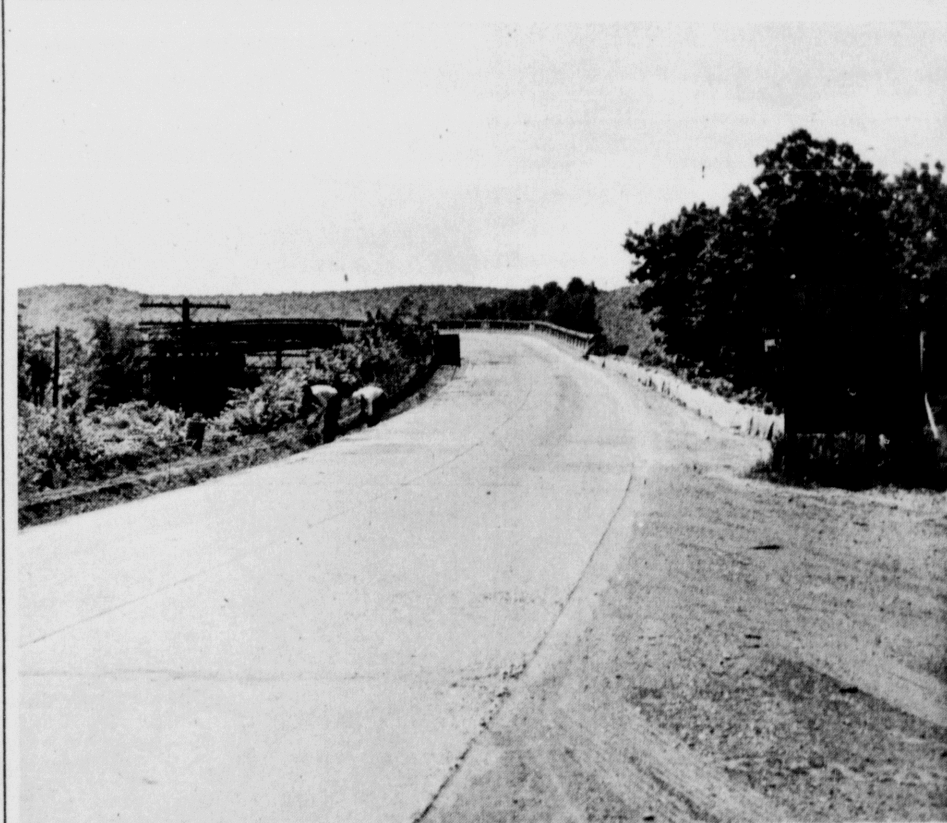

The need for more on street and off street parking in downtown Warren was given a main topic of discussion when members of the Chamber of Commerce retailers' committee met this week.

Main concern was aimed at Second and Third avenues, between Market and Liberty streets, where the committee feels a widening project should be adopted and parking permitted on both sides.

To aid the existing parking situation, the committee, plans to conduct a campaign for funds that will start a continuing parking project for the Warren Parking authority. The first project will be improvement of the YMCA tennis courts to permit parking with meters. This area will accommodate 32 vehicles.

Formal approval of the latter project is expected by borough council Monday evening, after which time the financial drive will formally start. The drive chairman is Joe Krimmel.

Chester West was a special guest at the meeting and explained plans for the Old Fashioned Bargain Days to be held here in October.

ROAD IMPROVEMENT for approximately one and one-half miles between the White-Way Drive-In at Starbrick and the first overhead bridge west of Warren on Route 6 will provide a wider, straighter and smoother highway for motorists. But while this need improvement is being made, still nothing is being done about the dangerous overhead.

HIGHWAY CONSTRUCTION on Route 6 at Starbrick is correcting this previously narrow concert bridge that has been the scene of several accidents.

ON CHAMPIONSHIP TEAM

Pfc. Charles J. Reese, former Warren high athlete and University of Pittsburgh baseball player, recently helped his team win the volleyball championship of Augusta, Ga. He played the Fort Gordon Provost Marshal General's Center.

WILDCATS LOSE TWO

The Ludlow Wildcats had the braces knocked out from under their Penn-York baseball loop lead over the week end with a pair of losses.

At Wildcat park Sunday afternoon the Cats suffered an 8-5 set-back from Jamestown Art Metal. After knotting the game, 5-5, in the bottom of the eighth, the Ludlow nine was unable to stop the visitor's three-run rally in the final frame.

Adams went the distance for Jamestown, as Holden, Haight and Fragle shared the mound duty for Ludlow. At the plate Caldwell and Wilson smacked round-trippers for the losers.

Playing in Jamestown on Saturday, the Wildcats dropped a 6-3 decision to Marlin-Rockwell.

ELK'S NINE SPLITS

The Warren Elk's baseball club downed Jamestown Art Metal, 3-1, on the State Hospital diamond Saturday afternoon and then blew a 6-4 lead as they lost to the Starlite Bombers on Sunday.

Dave Lopez pitched a five-hit contest for the Saturday victory. Fred Gray lost the Sunday game.

CITY SOFTBALL LEAGUE

The City Softball circuit completed first-half play last week with Certified Electric on top with a 10-1 record. Finishing behind the first round champs were Nick's

Restaurant, 8-3; Jones Chevrolet, 7-3; Texas Lunch, 8-4; Guiffres, 3-8; New Bakers, 3-8; and New Process, 0-12.

Second-half rescheduling will take place when managers meet at the YMCA at 8:30 this evening.

MUCH GOLF PLAY

Tournaments are popping all over the Conewango Valley Country Club. Three were held this week to welcome the injured pro, Paul Porter, back to his job. Though not active, he is able to visit the pro shop and meet his many friends.

It also is certain that the Paul Porter Day tournament, July 15, will be open to the public and that at least four big names will participate. Lew Worsham, Lionel Hebert, Toby Lyons, and Sam Urzetta have given their word that they will be present.

These leaders in the game will give a clinic at one o'clock, preceding their own play in the tournament. Many more well known pros are expected to be here, including Mike Parco, of Buffalo, Mike Pavela, of Pittsburgh, and Frank Comisso, of Rochester.

It is expected to be so large a field that many of the amateurs will be scheduled off the tee as early as seven in the morning. The well known pros and amateurs will be seen in the afternoon.

Low handicap amateurs throughout the area, including Warren, are invited to take part. The entry fee is ten dollars including lunch. You can contact the pro shop for an entry blank, or call Chuck Blackman, Pete Juliano, Bill Rice, John Trevenen, Westy Ensworth, or Bob Walsh.

The course has been lengthened with a new par 5 on number two, which now is about one hundred yards longer. Par for the course is 37, and it plays very tough. The best of them will be given a real test.

Spectator tickets for the tournament and exhibition are on sale at many places in Warren, including the Elks, Sons of Italy, Marconi, Style Shop, Printz Co., Check's Blue Sunoco, Olson and Bjers, Chimenti Barber Shop, Texas Lunch, Penn Restaurant, Nick's Restaurant, United Cigar, Mack's News, B and B Smoke Shop, Logan's Men's Wear.

OTHER PLAY

This week Pete Juliano fired a 38 to lead the men's weekly tourney. Blind bogey winners were Pete, Kerm Vicander, Nummy Lundahl, Frank Perrin, and Westy Ensworth. Frank also was closest to the pin on number seven, 5 feet seven inches.

Final results of three tournaments held this week have not been announced. At the present Tim Creal is leading the men's 18-hole event with 73 less a handicap of 3 for a net 70. Phil Pritchard has 79 less a handicap of 9 for a 70. Tim's 73 is low gross.

In the mixed tournament many still were to play when this was written. Leading the field were Rachel Beaty and Harold Smith with a net 56. Milt Dahler and Karol Kirberger had 58.

WOMEN'S ACTION

Low gross in the women's weekly golf tournament was a 91 posted by B. J. Fisher, who also was low net in the first division. Mid Angove led the second and tied in the third were Kay Walker and Sally Siggins.

In the special poker event, Katy Fuelhart tied with Betty Sedwick in the first division with five 6's. Karol Kirberger won the second and Sally Siggins paced the third division.

HOT STOVE LEAGUE

"Help Keep Them Slugging"

BANTAM LEAGUE (Eastern Division)

Kurz' streak of three no-hitters was ended Monday night when New Process Co. downed St. Paul's Lutheran, 2 to 0. Lind was credited with the win after allowing only one hit and fanning 16 men. Peterson, of the losing squad, slammed a triple.

Penn Furnace clipped the Exchange Hotel, 10-5, in a make-up game at Lacy field. Home runs were hit by Dove, Dickey and Merenick. David Smith was the winning pitcher.

BANTAM LEAGUE (Western Division)

Gaughn's Drug overpowered Emblem Oil, 7-3, in a Bantam loop game. T. Scalise pitched the win, letting up two hits, while at the plate Creola hit two triples and Suppa another.

INTERMEDIATE LEAGUE

Youngsville Kiwanis knocked off Elmhurst Market, 9 to 7. Loomis gave up seven hit in getting the win. Three-baggers were hit by Matteo and Nielsen. In another contest with the Warren Kiwanis, the Youngsville team scored a 11-1 victory with Gustafson on the mound.

Betts Machine shut-out Sylvania,

0-0, in Intermediate league action. Tassone tossed a one-hitter and hit the only extra-base hit, a double.

JUNIOR LEAGUE

Youngsville's American Legion nine hit fast in the first inning to get the necessary margin for a 3-2 win against the Style Shop. A three-hit performance was turned in by Allen. Oehlenschlager slugged a triple in the game.

CADET LEAGUE (Eastern Division)

The Printz Co. aggregation tallied in every period to down Nelson & Ellberg by a score of 27 to 1. Rasmussen led at the plate with a home run and triple. Three-baggers were also clubbed by Armstrong and Lind. English threw the win.

Winning pitcher, K. Williams, and R. Stewart each collected two hits as J. A. Johnson's nicked Fernow Pontiac in a 2-1 contest.

CADET LEAGUE (Eastern Division)

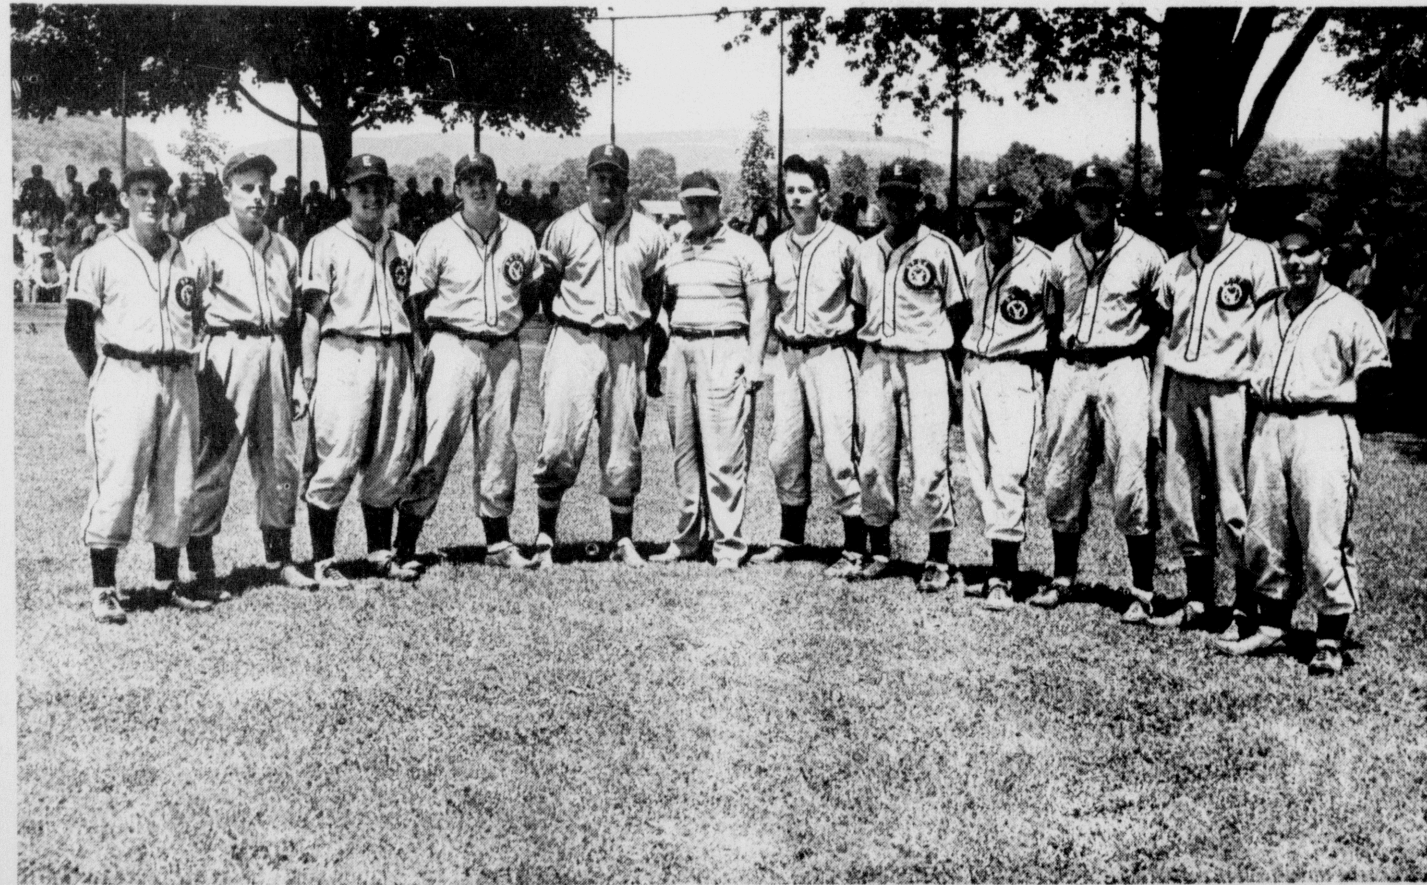

Three timely hits by both R. McClement and L. DeRosia played a big part in J. A. Johnson's 9-3 win over the Printz Co. for the first half championship of the eastern division. Ron Seder was featured in a four-hit mound performance. A triple and double were hit by DeRosia and McClement smacked a pair of two-baggers.

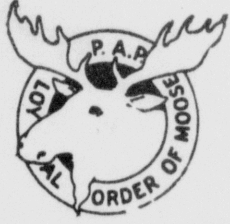

MIDGET LEAGUE (Eastern Division)

Mack's News hit safely eight times in scoring a 10-4 victory over Newell Press. Tourtellott hurled a five-hitter to get the win and Lowe and Bliss added their bit with home runs.

WORKHORSES who share the mound duty on the Warren Elk's ball club are (l. to r.) Ken Thompson, Fred Gray, Ron Martin and Dave Lopez.

Drama TV Radio Music Reading Hobbies

(This column usually is written by the editor. Occasionally a staff member prepares it, and we welcome contributions from others. Last week we forgot to give credit to our Sheffield editor, Clara Spade, who did the column. Today's is written by Lenore McIntyre, our Tidioute editor.)

We invite others to provide material for the column. Anyone who has a new hobby or a hobby that has an established hobby or form of leisure time activity is welcome to participate. Maybe you have had an experience worth telling. It should be typed, double-spaced, and should be no longer than three typewritten sheets. It should be signed, but we will not use your name if you prefer it that way.)

A NEW HORIZON

Tens of thousands of Americans, on the verge of annual vacations, are seeking new places to visit. Much of our national scenery, beautiful and wonderful as it is, has lost its glamor either through commercialization or familiarity, or both. In trying to enhance or improve upon nature, man has too frequently diminished the basic attractions with the result that an artificial aura surrounds or obscures much of the American scene. You perhaps have had the experience of visiting some particular spot only to come away feeling frustrated and cheated. It was as if you had seen it before, as indeed you had. Thanks to TV and movie cameras, to say nothing of amateur photographers and glossy travel magazines, we have been bombarded with pictures so realistic in color and dimension that little new and exciting remains for us.

If you have a few minutes we would like to tell you a little about Alaska, a region that offers the tourist and sightseer the answer to "something new and different". Alaska is not the remote and ice-bound country that most people picture, inhabited primarily by blubber-chewing Eskimos and polar bears. No more so than is the United States a country of southern plantations, Texas ranches or Hollywoods. There is variety and contrast, much that is old and much that is new, a little bit of everything in a fresh and stimulating setting.

Distance is relative: by plane it takes about eighteen hours flying time; by auto, about two weeks. We recommend the former, for ease, safety and comfort. The flight across the northern part of the continent affords an aerial geography lesson, far more lucid than any topographical map, encompassing as it does the foothills of the Appalachians, the Great Lakes, Mississippi River, plains and prairies, Rocky Mountains and Pacific northwest coastal region.

Man's ingenuity in the development and utilization of natural resources has dotted the map with villages and cities, factories and farms, mines and ranches. As one journeys westward, the thought occurs that this was not always so, that it took men with vision, courage and ambition to move the frontiers further and further, to the very shores of the blue Pacific, and beyond. So, we come to America's "Last Frontier".

Vision, courage and ambition are as necessary today, in Alaska, as they were in the days when men struggled to open our vast continent. If the American people would look upon Alaska as it should be viewed, as an integral part of our nation, and not as an ice-bound chunk of foreign land, our physical and social boundaries would be extended. Alaska has much to offer and we have much to gain by conferring statehood with all its advantages and implications upon this territory which we bought and ignored.

The Gold Rush days, at the turn of the century, interested us briefly, until the excitement passed. For years, Rex Beach and Robert Service, with their prose and poetry, were our only link with this orphan child of the north. World War II gave Alaska its greatest impetus, as its strategic military value was realized. War-time installations and peacetime defense operations introduced thousands of Americans to this little known country. They remained or came away with the realization of its vast potentialities. In either event, it was the means of focusing attention at last on this fabled and fabulous land.

The pioneering urge is an inherent American trait and those who haven't smothered it beneath a luxurious standard of living can find an outlet in this undeveloped territory. But they will have to hurry or the opportunity will be gone. For, in spite of many handicaps, Alaska is growing and developing by leaps and bounds. Its population has increased steadily in the past few years. Modern cities have grown from crude villages or have sprung up as if by magic. Natural resources are being tapped, business and industry have been born and are struggling through the infant stages.

And it is a struggle, a "lifting by its own bootstraps". It needs highways and railroads, hydroelectric plants, venture capital. This baby needs its mother's devotion, to be taken into the family circle and afforded a little more attention than the problem of Alaska is a story in themselves.

Tourist travel in Alaska increases each year as her scenic attractions become better known. A research editor for the largest travel magazine in the world declares that the scenery is much more "staggering" than such world famed sights as Rio De Janeiro's beautiful harbor, sunset on the Andes, the fjords of Norway or the Swiss Alps. Here, at the top of the world, the land of the Midnight Sun and the Aurora Borealis, are lofty, snow-capped mountains, active volcanoes and glaciers; enchanting forest-covered islands, inlets, turbulent streams and lakes that repeat their jewel-like settings in their mirrored surfaces.

There are quaint native villages, remnants of Russian settlements, ghost-towns reminiscent of gold rush days. It is a paradise for hunters and fishermen: giant brown bear, the black bear and the grizzly, the enormous Kodiak and the little blue glacier bear, the polar bear; moose, mountain goat and big-horned sheep; deer and caribou; wolves and coyotes; lakes and streams abound with many species of trout; King Salmon frequently weigh more than a hundred pounds; other game fish are the Dolly Varden, rainbow, mackinaw, greyling and silver salmon; game birds, geese, ducks, brant and others, are in abundance.

A land of totem poles and neon signs, its many contrasts are stimulating and exciting. Here, distance is measured in hours, not miles, for transportation is chiefly by air. Indeed, much of Alaska is accessible only by plane for in this territory, one-fifth the area of the U. S., there are less than ten thousand miles of highway and only one standard gauge railroad, extending from Seward to Fairbanks.

For the tourist and sightseer looking for fresh, new vistas, for the adventurer with pioneer blood in his veins, for the industrialist seeking new sources of wealth, Alaska is the answer!

New Faces Dominate
Governor's Conference

By Doris Fleson

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. -- National politics, as seen from the vantage point of the annual Governors Conference just concluded, is in a transition stage.

The old landmarks are gone. The razor-sharp Thomas E. Dewey of New York who dominated his fellows by sheer ability and their lively sense that he might one day wield the Presidential power, is back in the private -- and lush -- practice of law.

Benign Earl Warren of California, who employed the twin weapons of charm and practicality, is Chief Justice of the United States by grace of President Eisenhower. James F. Byrnes, who turned against the New Deal the fine operating talents with which he helped to establish it, stepped down only last year.

Other somewhat lesser lights are on their way out of this particular arena. The chief GOP ornament of the conference, patrician Christian Herter of Massachusetts, retires this year. Gov. Allan Shivers of Texas, vanquished on his home grounds by the Rayburn-Johnson combination, had a press conference but it was a dull and dispirited affair. He will not even be a delegate to the Democratic National Convention.

Gov. Frank Lausche, who is trying to go to the Senate from Ohio, put on his pixy act again, but somehow it seemed a little old hat.

The national press made up its winter book from new faces. It is another measure of the GOP status as a minority party, deeply dependent on President Eisenhower, a national hero, that so few present Republican Governors were even seriously considered as future Presidential timber while so many Democrats got favorable mention.

Of Republican old pros, Goodwin J. Knight of California is precluded by age if, as seems now certain, the 1956 Presidential slate is foreclosed. William G. Stratton capably handles a big state, Illinois, but has never caught on nationally.

Governors Fred Hall of Kansas and Robert Smylie of Idaho made new friends, but they are from Jim Farley's "typical small prairie states."

Reporters were agreed that Governors Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut, Robert Meyner of New Jersey, Luther H. Hodges of North Carolina, Orval Faubus of Arkansas and Edmund S. Muskie of Maine were rapidly making their way to front seats in the Democratic party.

Ribicoff was especially impressive, giving an effect of sound political sense and complete honesty. Meyner managed the delicate job of host Governor and Presidential possibility with unobtrusive skill and a country boy charm that never suggested the synthetic.

A highlight was Governor Albert B. "Happy" Chandler's handling of a cynical press conference which came to scoff at his Presidential aspirations. They still scoffed when it ended but they were also laughing with him, having a fine time and genuinely respectful of his practice of his art.

For the Kentuckian's political observations, divorced from his buffoonery, were pithy and cogent. He showed genuine dignity at several sticky moments, as when he spoke of being at Harvard and a woman reporter blurted out, "What were you doing at Harvard?"

"I went to school there, honey, just like your little girl went to Vassar," Chandler answered quietly.

When he concluded philosophically that this was his last chance for the national ticket at his age, but if he lost he would go home content because "I wear my coat loose these days," there was applause. There was also regret for fine talent that has been largely wasted.

By and large, reporters like and respect Governors. They may think a "Soapy" Williams naive, an Arthur Langlie pedestrian, and an Averell Harriman over-eager. But they know it is no mean feat to get elected Governor of a sovereign state and run it well. They salute those who do.

Civil Rights Cracks North - South Coalition

By Thomas L. Stokes

WASHINGTON -- For many years the powerful conservative coalition in the House of Representatives comprised of Republicans and Southern Democrats has been symbolized in the bipartisan pair of leaders who directed it from the pinnacle of the House Rules Committee.

They are the veteran Virginia Democrat who looks like something out of "Pickwick Papers", Howard W. Smith, the committee chairman now serving his 23rd year in the House, and his Republican partner from Illinois, short and energetic Leo E. Allen, serving his 21st year in the House and ranking Republican on the committee.

This team was broken up for the first time when Allen deserted his old sidekick and joined two other Republicans and five Democrats this week to blast the civil rights bill out of the Rules Committee, where it had been bottled up after being approved by the House Judiciary Committee. Chairman Smith found himself in the minority, holding the bag with two other Southern Democrats.

It was the breakup of the Smith-Allen team on the civil rights bill, generally overlooked, which gives the real meaning of the break-up of the old conservative coalition in the House which, though perhaps temporary, is significant in this Presidential election year and denotes the political currents at work.

Allen's literally revolutionary act in deserting his Democratic teammate for the first time measures the determination of the Republican leadership, headed by the party's floor leader, Representative Joe Martin (Mass.), to put through the civil rights bill as a bold bid for the Negro vote in key Northern states -- a vote which for many years has been preponderantly Democratic -- and simultaneously to reveal in dramatic fashion the North-South split in the Democratic party on civil rights.

Allen stood by Chairman Smith last week in the showdown when the school construction bill, which had been held up for months in the Rules Committee, was forced out, 8 to 3, in the rebellion of a new coalition of Northern Republicans and non-South Democrats on the committee. Sparking the rebellion was a Democrat, Representative Richard Bolling, of Missouri.

But Allen finally parted company with his Virginia Democratic friend on the civil rights bill, which is supported by the Administration and by Northern Democrats.

This measure creates a new civil rights section in the Justice Department as well as setting up a bipartisan commission to investigate violation of civil rights. It also strengthens present laws to permit direct Federal prosecution of civil rights violation of all kinds, including attempts to prevent Negroes from voting.

The new coalition of Northern Democrats and Republicans revealed its strength in the Rules Committee coup to get before the House both the school construction and civil rights measures.

The old conservative coalition, which now fades into at least temporary obscurity, has frequently operated on behalf of conservative interests to impede and obstruct, and occasionally kill, New Deal and Fair Deal measures.

It has an interesting history. It was put together after the 1938 Congressional elections, halfway through the Roosevelt era, and largely was the handiwork of two Southern Democratic leaders -- then Vice-President John N. Garner and Senator James F. Byrnes of South Carolina.

Their aim was to try to check further expansion of the New Deal philosophy. The opportunity came when, in the 1938 elections, Republicans increased their strength sufficiently in both House and Senate -- they jumped from 88 to 168 in the House -- so that a combination with Southern Democrats would bring about a majority on some issues.

Other circumstances favored such a combination. The core of the Republican conservative element was in the Middle West, the Republican party's stronghold.

Midwestern Republicans were assured generally of long tenure in Congress. Thus, through operation of the seniority rule, they always occupied a number of key posts in House and Senate and so exercised a dominant influence on party policy in Congress, just as Southern Democrats do in the Democratic party, and because of their long tenure fostered by a one-party system. Between them, they always held the lion's share of power, which made the coalition especially effective.

Though operating chiefly against New Deal-Fair Deal type of economic and social reform measures, of which Federal aid to school construction is typical, Midwest Republicans often gave a lift to Southern Democrats to block civil rights measures.

Allen held to the coalition's conservative tradition in opposing Federal aid for school construction. But he broke with tradition when he deserted Representative Smith on civil rights -- and, it might be said, disappointed the Virginian no end.

ESCAPES DEATH. Frank M. Nichols, Jr. of 1001 Conewango ave., Warren, narrowly escaped death Sunday evening when a huge tree fell on top of his 1956 Oldsmobile convertible at the corner of Liberty st. and Fourth ave. Nichols, along with Paul Eugene Donick, of Sheffield, operator of the 1954 Chevrolet at the left, was waiting for a traffic light when the tree was brought down by the storm.

Neither driver suffered injury, but Nichols' car was demolished to the extent of $4100 and Donick's at an amount listed at $1000. A third car, which was parked, suffered $50 damage.

The Sunday night storm that struck the area blew down tree limbs and knocked out several power lines.

Kuhre's Amana Food Plan

10 South State Street

NORTH WARREN, PENNSYLVANIA

Many families in this vicinity will gladly tell you that KUHRE'S AMANA FOOD PLAN can save you from four to ten dollars or more per week. You may have heard some of our customers happily boast that they are getting Choice Grade, U. S. Inspected Top Label porter house, sirloin, round and T-bone steaks, roll roasts and other cuts of meat at a big saving.

We also furnish High Grade veal, lamb, pork, fowl, fish and various vegetables, fruits, fruit juices, as well as many other nationally advertised grocery items, at a surprising savings to you. You get free delivery to your door.

The benefits of KUHRE'S AMANA FOOD PLAN may be obtained as follows:

FOR A MINIMUM DOWN PAYMENT OF TEN DOLLARS we will place a New AMANA STORMOR FREEZER plus a six months supply of food of YOUR CHOICE in your home and give you the privilege of making your payments for both on a weekly or monthly basis. BUT this is not the important part -- The payments for the groceries and the freezer will not exceed what you are now paying for groceries alone at the retail stores. At the end of 24 months the Freezer automatically becomes yours and from then on you pocket all the savings. The privilege of buying food at quantity discount prices is yours indefinitely.

Having a Freezer Full of Food is like having a "Super-Market" right in the home. You save time and gas and spare yourself the tiresome waiting in lines and carrying big bundles. Life is made more pleasant for mother, who finds it easier to "make ends meet" and to prepare well-balanced nutritional meals. You get food that is clean, sanitary, and always fresh, further safe-guarding your families health.

Observations

By Bob Walsh

HOW INDEPENDENT?

Nine score years ago our fathers said nuts to the king and started a nation of their own. They also started some archaic thinking that has continued with us and today is widely used for purposes other than patriotic.

At the very start they set up little state boundaries and guarded them selfishly. So much so that the nation almost didn't get started, and had a tough time making it after the papers were signed.

Most of these boys didn't want to limit their freedom to escape from the king's taxes. They wanted to be their own little area bosses with no big talk from a national capitol.

Those boundaries still stand, plus many additional ones, too many of which were established to suit the vote wanted and not for practical purposes. They reach down into the county level, and then on down to cities, towns, boroughs, and townships. The more narrow we make it the more narrow becomes our gauge of thinking.

Today we find a great nation still hampered by this kind of thinking. We compete among ourselves for commercial prosperity, inveigle industry away from other areas, and pull political strings to see that other sections are not developed physically so that plants will not be attracted there.

It seems not to occur to us that the world is becoming very small and our own nation from ocean to ocean is available to all of us. We overlook that the development of our natural resources to the very limit of their value is of great importance to everyone of us, and that it would be much more practical to let industry locate where it is most feasible and that it is much easier to move the individual rather than bribe plant owners to settle in unnatural places.

PROFESSIONAL SHACKLERS

The state Chamber of Commerce and other organized groups constantly battle national help to education and the development of such areas as western rivers. They point out that such states as Pennsylvania will pay out much more than other areas and will get less back. How limited can we get?

This kind of thinking can be carried down to the county level (and is), and on down to the community level (and is), and even down to the township level (and is). So while we are about it why not carry it down to the individual and his freedom about which we prate. The man of wealth certainly pays in far more than he receives back. His share of the education bill in cold dollars and cents is far more than his poorer neighbors. Yet his children receive only what the poor children receive in the public schools.

For this reason we wonder if those organized for the purpose of having the income tax eliminated are not the same who claim each small section of this nation should finance its own development.

We are suspicious of narrow gauge sectionalism. It can very well limit our industrial development to the benefit of a few and of course is extremely dangerous in this day of international competition along all lines, militarily and economically. We believe selfishness as usual is being allowed to hamstring our forward progress.

PRICES FORCED UP

Let's take a look at prices in some raw material lines today. The demand is so great and the supply so limited that we are paying prices far out of proportion. Those who produce these materials base their prices on what they can get and not on a fair percentage of profit.

While this continues we have big interests constantly fighting the development of new areas. Such development would provide much electric power in large sections of our nation and the present shortages would be eliminated. This, of course, would put a very large nick in the monopolistic, or near monopolistic, control of many prices. The lush profits would be reduced. This is what many call healthy competition in a nation based on free enterprise. Unfortunately it requires the people working through their government to set the stage for such competition, otherwise a few sectionalists will distort the meaning of the word and enjoy a great gain at the expense of the nation.

We can give you one example that is close to us. There is such a shortage of paper that many publications are forced to limit their pages, and on some days accept no advertising. Yet we own millions of acres where mills could be built but there is no power. An outstanding example is Alaska. We haven't tapped the potentialities of this great area.

We hope this nation acts soon enough to enjoy some of the benefits of Alaska before the Russians take it away from us for nothing. This could happen, you know, in a world struggle if we were limited in that struggle by our failure to make the most of our natural strength.

A PRICE ON HELP?

We cannot understand the pillar in the church who forgets the teachings of Christ on Monday when he argues that we should not help other people because we will not get back what we spend. That is what these people are saying when they oppose national spending for education, public power, and other facilities that will help others.

Actually no one would be hurt. What prospers the nation prospers all of us. And in this day of easy travel, why limit our choice of living to one section. If it no longer is practical for a town to exist for purposes that created it, let the people move.

Our choice of climates is great. A change of scenery would hurt none of us. But in this we are being extreme because we believe that natural development of the whole will help all of us, individuals and states. The people must decide. Not a few who control politicians.

The perverse twist to this is that we do not become excited as a people until our purse is empty. Then, when we are least able to pay, we force politicians to think progressively and to mortgage our nation through bonds for the purpose of great public works.

Why wait for trouble? Why not prevent it? Better schools, better highways, better health, the maximum use of our rivers, minerals, and lands, all combine to assure prosperity and the continuance of the United States as a major nation.

This is not an individual, nor a township, a town, a state. It is a nation! It is time for the people to declare their independence, tear away the imaginary lines on the map, and act as a nation.

WHAT GOOD, THE RAISE?

We wonder when the ceiling will be reached in pay raises and prices? It is not that we oppose pay increases. The laborer is worthy, etc., but haven't we in some lines reached the point of no return?

There still are some underpaid industries, and the unions in those lines have not accomplished their jobs. But generally speaking the average workman today has reached the point where a raise is apt to mean nothing.

If labor accepts the proposition offered by the steel firms the workmen may enjoy a couple dollars a week more to spend. Steel immediately may jump prices, let us say five or six dollars a ton. Cars will go up $100, and the worker will spend his raise on the first buggy he rolls out from the garage.

In addition, all other lines will be affected, and other prices will inch up. If the price of living index increases even ten percent, the workman who received the 100 additional dollars will be spending four or five hundred dollars a year more to live.

This may not show in the week-to-week budget, but over a year's time it is there. What has he gained?

THE ANSWER?

We are not suggesting that the steel worker stop seeking more money. But we do believe that some day his leaders will have to ask for a raise with no increase in prices. There is nothing new about this suggestion. The intelligent labor leaders are fully aware of the problem and have made such suggestions. They even have produced figures to prove it could be done. But the ceiling has not been set.

Some day we must find that fair percentage of every price that must go to the worker. The laggards must be brought up to par and the fair profit must be determined. We doubt if it happens tomorrow.

In this nation of free enterprise it will not be easy to set profits and labor ceilings. Few men will agree to either. They prefer to take their chances on higher money and the opportunity to make a fortune that may come their way. Even the small wage laborer is apt to dream of a small business of his own and he wants no strings attached to capital that may later limit his own way upward.

WHEN COSTS TUMBLE

There probably will come the day when prosperity is not so common. It may not be a depression but it could be a tightening of the purse and a heavy inventory. Combined they can make competition very brisk and production methods may need sharpening.

This will provide an excuse for lay-offs, and the savings effected may make lower prices possible. The remaining workers will be making fair money and will be living well, but they will be producing more products with less hands and less hours.

Too many prices today are not based on costs. They are based on what the traffic will bear. A lush situation like this leads to investment by others in fields of endeavor that are enjoying such a margin. This can mean work for those laid off by today's top dogs.

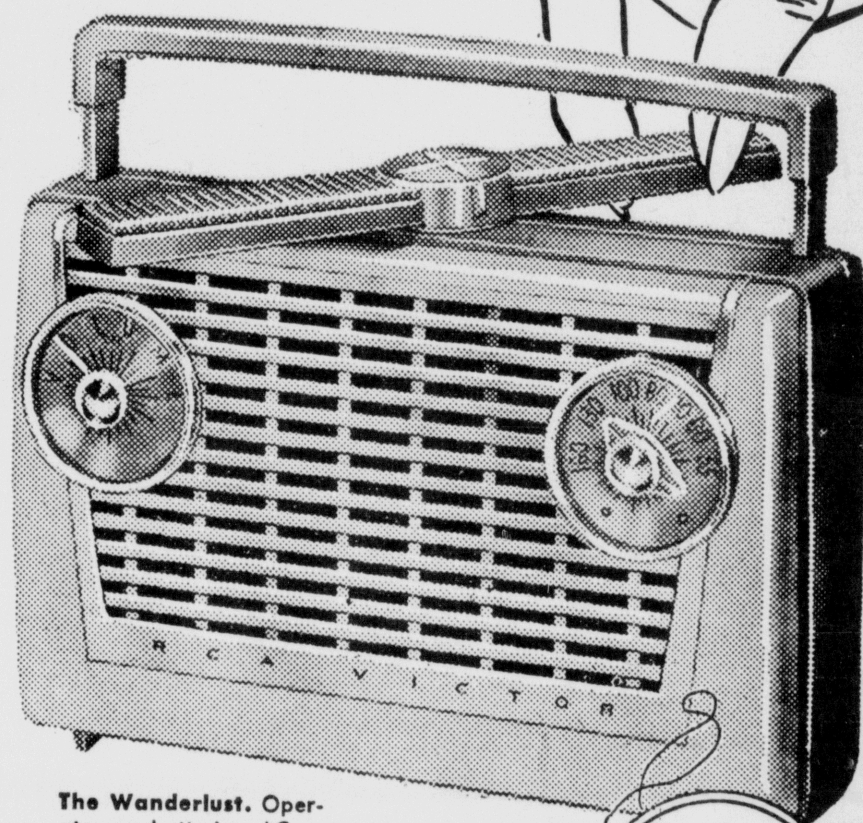

At that point, with machines making the thirty-hour week possible and with workers thinly divided among stiff competitors, the understanding may be required concerning labor's share of the product's price, the product he must make well and help sell if he is to keep a job.

Meanwhile, the buyer has more money . . . but does he?

The group embarked from Quebec, Canada, on June 22 and will return to New York on September 4.

In Brief

FATALLY INJURED in a two-car collision one-half mile north of Enterprise at 5:30 p. m. Monday was B. F. Bretch, 66, of 3 South State st., North Warren. The victim died upon arrival at the Titusville hospital.

Brech was travelling north at the time and sideswiped a truck operated by Lawrence Archer, of Oil City. Archer and a passenger in the cab, Bernard Foster, are in Oil City hospital. Two other passengers, Dave Zuck and David Bert, who were riding in the back of the truck, were removed to Titusville hospital for treatment. All are from Oil City.

A RECKLESS DRIVING charge was placed against Patsy Feronti, 6 Elm st., Warren, following a collision at the intersection of Pennsylvania ave., E., and Park st. at 8:45 a. m. Monday. Police, who were behind the Feronti vehicle, stated she was proceeding east on the avenue and struck a car operated by E. F. Bergstrom, Kane, as she negotiated a left turn into Park st. Damage was estimated at $500.

A CLARENDON MAN was arrested by State Police Friday on charges of driving during license suspension and for resisting arrest. Officers placed the charges against Merle M. Dodge after his car left the highway and crashed into a utility pole just north of Akeley on Route 62. He is out on $300 bond for each charge pending court charges.

THREE PEOPLE SUFFERED shock and received body bruises at 12:15 p. m. Saturday when the car in which they were riding left Route 27 one-half mile north of Youngsville and struck a pole. Injured were Grace Thompson, the driver, and Maurice Thompson, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and Barbara York, a 12-year-old Youngsville girl. Damage was estimated at $400.

MEN IN SERVICE. Pvt. Richard T. Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey N. Moore, 108 Market st., Warren, is helping provide support for National Guard and Army Reserve units on active duty training at Camp Drum, N. Y., this summer.

Recently promoted to the rank of corporal was Marine Donald E. Vincent, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Vincent, Route 1, Grand Valley. He was serving at Lake Mead Barracks, Las Vegas, Nev., at the time.

On June 21, John Kostkas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen R. Kostkas, Irvine, completed his recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S. C.

PERSONALITIES. A. B. Chiaramonte, Warren, was elected 1957 president of the Archbishop Gannon Retreat league, Erie Diocese, at a summer Retreat meeting in St. Bonaventure, N.Y., July 1.

Warren Council 964, Knights of Columbus, officers elected to serve during the 1956-57 fiscal year were Steve Krogler, Jr., grand knight; Benjamin Scalise, deputy grand knight; Benjamin Malec, chancellor; Joseph Musante, recording secretary; Eugene Williams, treasurer; Angelo Juliano, advocate; Fred Aumer, warden; Harold Smith, inside guard; Henry Leofsky, outside guard; and John Salamon, trustee for three years.

TWENTY-YEAR-OLD Carl Eastman, of 22 Fifth ave., W., Warren, was put in Warren County jail Monday after a hearing before Justice of the Peace Irvine Branch. He pleaded guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct and failed to provide $22.50 fine and costs. The warrant was sworn out by Dennie DePierro, of the White House Inn, after a misunderstanding at the night spot. Eastman was picked up by Sgt. Donald Holmes, of the State Police, and James Higginbotham.

HOLIDAY FATALITY. A ten-year-old Prospect, Butler County, boy lost his life Wednesday while wading in the Tionesta Creek. Carl William Wagoner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace E. Wagoner, was wading in the creek near the mouth of Minister Creek when he slipped into a deep hole.

The incident occurred at 11:07 a.m. Wednesday and the body was recovered by Tionesta State police and firemen from Sheffield, Tionesta and Rocky Grove at 2 p.m. The victim's parents were staying at a camp near Tionesta over the Fourth holiday.

A TOTAL OF $31,200 is being put into a series of improvement projects now underway in Warren by the Manufacturers Light and Heat company. The program calls for laying 1,929 feet of new 4-inch gas main, replacing 3,619 feet of 2-inch main with larger four-inch pipe, replacing 83 service lines, and installing 14 new service lines.

Part of the work is being carried out in connection with the borough's $94,000 street paving program. Gas mains are being relocated on six of the nine streets affected.

MID-TOWN MOTORS co-owners, Warren Johnson and Cliff Johnson, have revealed plans to start construction of a new building on the three-lane above the Chalet at North Warren.

Construction of the building, which will be 60 by 100 feet, is to start immediately on the 238 by 425 foot lot.

Mid-Town Motors is required to move out of its present Pennsylvania ave., W., location because of the new motel that is to be built there. The management expects to be relocated by August.

THE DISPUTE OVER the Democratic chairmanship in Warren County will be aired by the executive committee of the Pennsylvania Democratic organization in a hearing at Harrisburg on July 10. Donald Conway, the newly elected chairman, and Michael Papavero, the losing incumbent, are involved in the issue.

THE WARREN ELKS baseball team finished in a 3-3 deadlock with Bradford in a Fourth of July contest at the State Hospital diamond. The game was called on account of darkness after seven innings. Ken Thompson was on the mound for the locals.

PLAYGROUND ACTIVITY picked up in Warren last week with 8114 people using the facilities, an increase over the previous year. A total of 2055 youngsters are now registered.

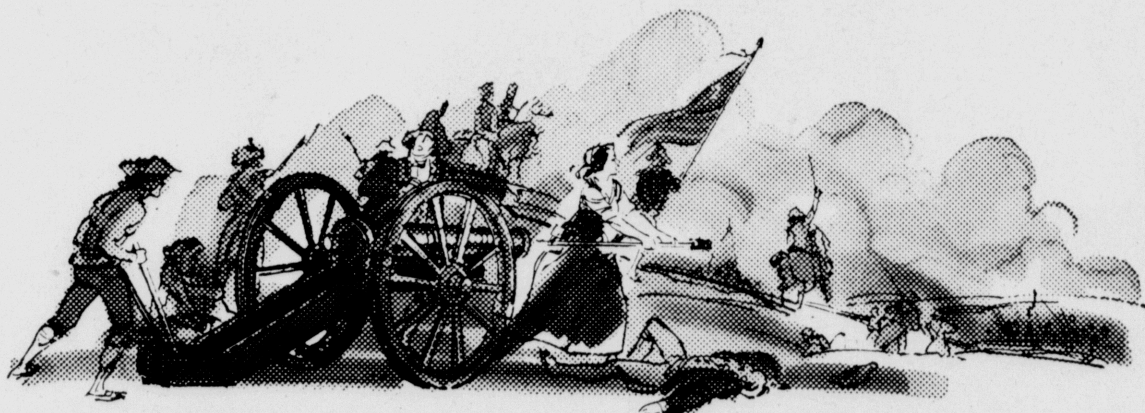

IN WARREN COUNTY JAIL today is John O'Kelley, of Conneaut, Ohio. He was arrested July 4 by Sheriff Larry E. Linder and Deputy Donnell Allen, Jr., while selling government surplus food in Youngsville. What charge would be filed against the Ohio man had not been determined at this time.

MANY ARRESTS were made by state police in this area over the holiday. Three accidents, which caused little damage and no injuries, resulted in charges against those who caused the trouble. There also were numerous arrests for speeding, improper passing, and similar violations.

She came to see her husband- stayed to charge the cannon!

NEITHER BATTLEFIELD nor housework defeated Molly Pitcher.

Her real name was Mary Ludwig Hays.

And on June 28, 1778, she came to Monmouth County, New Jersey, to visit her husband, an artilleryman serving in the Revolutionary War. When the battle of Monmouth began, Mary saw so much to be done that she just stayed.

She carried countless pitchers of water to the exhausted and wounded soldiers. And when her husband fell wounded, she took his place at a cannon. Before the battle ended, Mary Ludwig Hays became famous as Molly Pitcher, one of this country's first heroines.

Today's battles are being fought on the economic front. And there's much that any woman can do to help in this field. A family's sound financial standing depends as much upon a woman's ability to manage money as it does her husband's ability to make it.

Many women are helping their families win financial independence by encouraging their husbands to invest regularly in U. S. Series E Savings Bonds on the Payroll Savings Plan. It's the easiest way to save—one of the safest—and one of the best ways to guarantee future prosperity.

Borough School Board Has Routine Session

The State Tax Equalization board has set the 1955 market value of property in Warren -- for reimbursement purposes in the 1957-58 fiscal year -- at $37,419,700. The report was disclosed at a routine meeting of the Warren Borough school board Monday evening.

The board also acknowledged a general state appropriation of $92,541, which, along with an unpaid figure of $75,000, was due in April. Other state receipts included $447, April medical program; $193, May medical program; $806, May milk program; $340, May lunch program; and $247, tuition.

It is interesting to note that the reimbursement for the lunch program amounted to less than two cents. The actual reimbursement is supposed to amount to nine cents per meal, but for the past school year has not exceeded five cents.

Payments were approved in the amount of $424, substitute teachers; $2022, special services (mainly for playground supervisors); $45, janitors' overtime; $309, cafeteria bills; $45, services; $8,801, orders for the month. Bills for the month amounted to $4674, $1090 for the tax collector bond and $900 for the Library association.

A report was received on the absence of employees and revealed a cost of $487 to the school board under the local plan.

A total of $2202 was paid out for substitute teachers in the borough and $2570 was deducted for teachers' absence.

Several bids were accepted for supplies for the ensuing year, including one from Don Vicini, Clarendon, to purchase stoker coal at $5.69 a ton. It was also decided to increase the boiler insurance from ten to twenty thousand dollars.

The board approved taking student teachers from Edinboro State Teachers College and the Pennsylvania State University the next school year.

YOUR VACATION

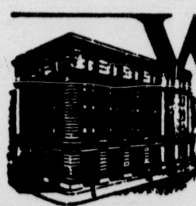

As the days begin to warm, a dreamy look creeps into the eye of the executive or professional man. Perchance he thinks of driving north again by all those beautiful lakes in the north woods, and over narrow winding roads through the Scotch pines.

Then the thrill as a fish as long as your arm strikes your dare devil or pikey minnow, the smallest and most tender fish cooked for lunch by the guides, then a quick swim while the dinner is cooking.

You need a vacation like that next summer. You can have it by saving for it. Start a savings account for that vacation which will bring you pleasure while it lasts and leave you full of happy memories and in bounding health.
